

Be what you wanna be

(words and music Lee Maddeford)

There's arising a whole new way to see just look at yourself and be what you wanna be misses jones was washing up on a sunday afternoon while the father and son were playing with the video in the other room she thinks of when she was younger and the dreams that she'd forgot like changin' the world and livin' a life a little different then the one she got she looks into the mirror throws the rags upon the floor and then she walks out the door she's gonna find something more

just look at yourself and be what you wanna be

I know a man in another town who lived out on the street he got tired of working for the same ol' faces and kissin' the same old feet he packed his bags went walkin' he was a man who was on his own but one day just thinking 'bout his daughter and son he starts feelin' all alone so he calls his wife in memphis says honey if you agree just open the door and I'll be coming back for more so if you're feeling lonely and you're thinking that your life's a bitch and a bore just open a door and you're bound to find something more
