

optical illusion

(words and music Lee Maddeford)

My life is nothing but an optical illusion floating down upon the wings of time emotions turning with electrical confusion spinning through the maze inside my mind some people try to give me cynical solutions I don't hear the things they have to say If life is nothing but an optical illusion all I have to do is find my way and try to

REFRAIN

give a little bit
give a little bit
of love to you now

I try to squeeze into a practical position tell you all the things you'd love to hear like trying to be a simple-minded politician turning corners trying to hide from fear and If sometimes you feel a little bit rejected try to put yourself inside my shoes you know my words are almost always misdirected the only thing I got to do is choose complicated matters haunts me complicating simple things try to see the world more clearly try to understand a way
